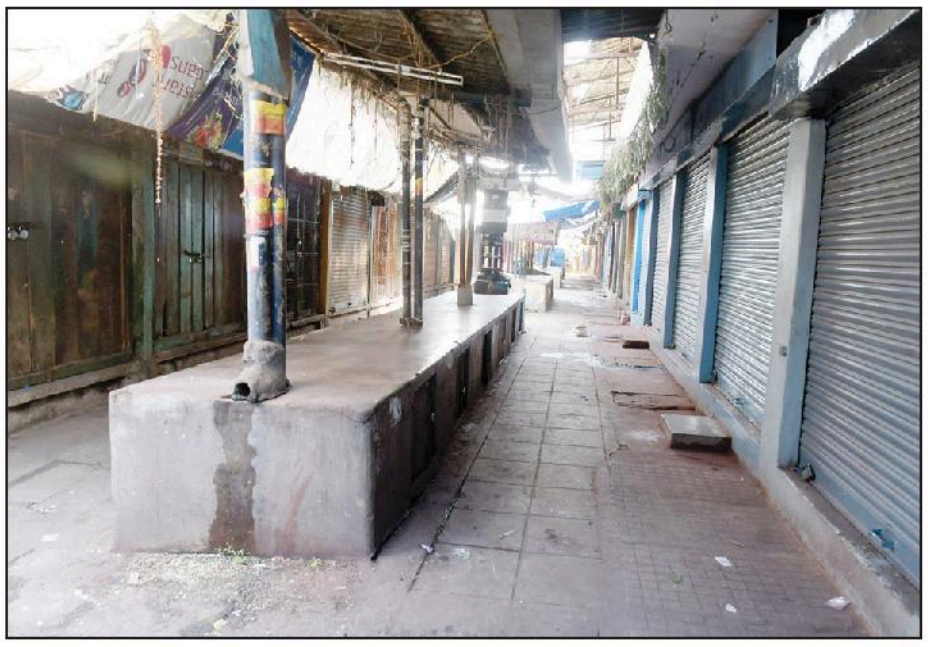
Devaraja Market tenants oppose demolition move

Market shut till 2 pm; occupants march till DC Office, voice their protest



The usually crowded Devaraja Market wears a deserted look this morning as the Market was shut in protest against the demolition. Picture right shows the titular head of the erstwhile Mysore royal family Yaduveer Krishnadatta Chamaraja Wadiyar during the launch of protest rally from Dufferin Clock Tower.

Mysuru, Apr. 20 (MTY&BCT)- The 125-year-old Devaraja Market, usually teeming with shopkeepers and shoppers from dawn to dusk every day, wore a deserted look this morning with trade coming to a grinding halt as the Market was shut in protest against the proposal to demolish and reconstruct.

There are over 1,200 vendors (tenants) in the Market and all of them unitedly joined the protest call given by the Devaraja Market Tenants' Association and not even a single shop was opened. Even the goods to the Market arrived late today and loaders had to wait till 2 pm to unload them into individual shops.

There are over 800 shopkeepers who pay monthly rent to the Mysuru City Corporation (MCC) and another 250 vendors are carrying out business by paying daily rent.

'Next they might say Mysore Palace must be demolished'

Yaduveer demands disbanding of Heritage Panel and formation of new one with real experts

Mysuru, Apr. 20 (MTY&BCT)- Mincing no words against the District Heritage Committee that has recommended the demolition of Devaraja Market and Lansdowne Building, titular head of erstwhile Mysore royal family Yaduveer Krishnadatta Chamaraja Wadiyar — while launching a protest rally to save Devaraja Market this morning — alleged that there are only two heritage experts in the Heritage Committee and the rest do not have any knowledge about history and heritage.

"Only two people are knowledgeable about the historic value of structures built by the Wadiyars and they are in minority. This Committee must be disbanded and a real Heritage Committee must be constituted with a majority of members being conservationists, architects who are experts in heritage structures, restoration specialists and technical experts. Only then there is some hope for Mysuru's heritage structures," he said.

Siddu launches massive protest march in city

Mysuru, Apr. 20 (MTY&BNR)- Joining the State-wide protest call, Mysuru City and Rural Congress leaders are taking part in the massive protest march launched by Opposition Leader and former CM Siddharamaiah by beating drums (nagari) at Gandhi Square in city this noon. Many party leaders are taking part in the protest march in city expressing their ire against '40% commission Government' and seeking the arrest of former Minister K.S. Eshwarappa, holding him guilty of abetting suicide of Contractor Santosh Patil, who ended his life recently after hurling charges against Eshwarappa, who was the RDPR Minister.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

One of the elements in storytelling is to keep a little secret going till the end. Some call it suspense, others call it the climax. As a story is being told, there comes a twist, an unexpected challenge, and the plot intensifies. The listener typically asks, "And then what happened?" and there comes a turn of events. O'Henry was known for the sudden twist at the end of his stories.

Adikavi Valmiki wrote his famed story of the Ramayan, which has inspired many generations, with a difference. It may be surprising to learn that in the very first chapter, he tells the entire story of the Ramayan, with all the details. If he has missed out anything, he repeats the entire story in the third chapter again, right to the end when Ravan is slain and Ram returns to Ayodhya and is coronated...

But the charming thing about reading Valmiki is that interest never flags. Why?

The secret lies in framing the question. The Ramayan begins with Valmiki asking Narad, who was visiting his ashram, a question that he had been pondering over. "Who, in this wide world, is endowed with all qualities? Who is he who knows the right from wrong, is courageous, abides by dharma, is full of resolve, committed to Truth, has integrity in his actions, is full of moral rectitude, a man of knowledge, powerful, humble, who has subdued his senses, is gentle and soft spoken, splendorous, has a generous heart but when provoked can make even Gods tremble?" Valmiki wonders if there can be one person who has all these qualities and more.

Narad agrees that it is a rather difficult question, but yes, he does know of such a person. And he proceeds to tell Valmiki the entire story of Ramayan...

So within the first three chapters, the entire story is told twice. That is because the focus of the Ramayan is not on Ram killing Ravan. It is on the qualities of Ram and his character. The storyline is but a series of challenges that come his way... challenges to his integrity, courage, generosity, his commitment to Truth and so on.

It does not matter which trajectory your life takes; it does not matter who behaves how. What matters is your response. And that is what immortalises men and women.

Longest glass bridge nearing completion

Moc Chau Island: Tourism officials in Vietnam said a 2,073.5-foot-long glass bridge set to open to the public soon is believed to be the longest glass bridge in the world.

Officials with the Moc Chau Island Tourist Area in Son La Province said the Bach Long bridge, set to open on Apr. 30 for the Reunification Day holiday, is being submitted to Guinness World Records for recognition as the longest glass bridge in the world.

The V&A Museum has an example of such a chest: "Tea, introduced into Europe in the late 17th century, was a valuable commodity. It was kept securely in elegant boxes with secure locks. At that time, these were usually known as 'tea chests', although they are now generally referred to as 'tea caddies'. Such boxes often contained two or more compartments for different types of tea, or for sugar, stored in small metal containers known as 'tea canisters'."

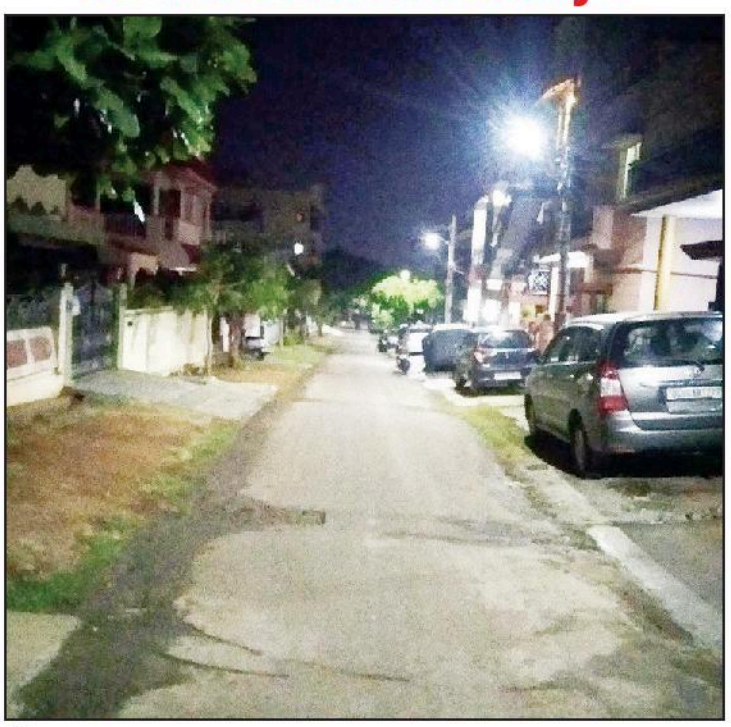
Do LED lights pose threat to bird community?



Sir,

With the intention of low power consumption, more brightness and keeping low cost and durability, the Mysuru City Corporation (MCC) has started installing LED street-lights in various localities of the city. (see pic.)

Yes, this looks very good, elegant and bright. But certain environmentalists have raised questions that these LED bulbs may not attract the flies which normally used to come surround the fluorescent tubes earlier.

These flies used to serve as food to various birds and with the installation of LED lights, there may not be any more flies, and the birds which used to depend on these flies may starve and over a period of time may also get extinct.

One should remember here that the sparrow community too had the same threat when the mobile towers were installed.

It is high time that some environmentalists or ornithologists clarify on this, so that under the guise of beautification of the city, we should not pose threat to the bird community.

Heavy rains lash parts of city

Mysuru, Apr. 20 (GA&KS)- Heavy rains lashed parts of city yesterday evening, bringing down a couple of branches and flooding a residential layout.

While a few localities such as Kuvempunagar, Ramakrishnanagar, Aishwarya Layout and J.P. Nagar received heavy rains, Hebbal and surrounding places received light showers.

There was no rain in areas like Siddarthanagar, Alanahalli, Manasi Nagar, Yeraganahalli, Sathagalli etc.

Following heavy rains, Aishwarya Layout was flooded and rain water entered houses in this locality. The rains, which began at about 7.30 pm, lashed till late night. Branches of a few trees on Udayaravi Road in Kuvempunagar, ISKCON Road in Jayanagar, Vidyaranyapuram 4th Main Road and near the Police Booth at J.P. Nagar broke and fell on the road, hampering smooth movement of vehicles.

MCC's Abhaya Team-2 staff, who arrived at the spots, cleared the branches and made way for smooth flow of traffic.

Nomads of Ekalavyanagar demand title deeds

Mysuru, Apr. 20 (PM&TRR)- The residents of Shyadanahalli survey number 37 in Ekalavyanagar, who are Nomads, staged a protest on Monday demanding that the sites on which they are residing now be registered in their name and also seeking title deeds for the same.

The protesters, who assembled in front of Deputy Commissioner's Office, said that the District Administration which evacuated them from survey number 53 to survey number 37 about 12 years ago with an assurance that they will be provided with houses under Jawaharlal Nehru National Urban Renewal Mission (JNNURM), had failed to keep up its assurance.

Some basic facilities were provided to them when they were shifted to their present location at Ekalavyanagar and now the protesters want the sites where they are dwelling now be registered in their names.

Speaking on the occasion, Dalit Sangharsh Samithi (DSS) Convenor Choranahalli Shivanna said that about 200 families of Nomadic community were residing in survey number 37, which is a Government land.

Though they had given applications to register their sites under Akrama-Sakrama 94CC notification, the local Revenue officials have given illegal khatas to some private people which has been an obstacle to the registration of the sites to Nomadic families. These illegal khatas should be cancelled, he demanded.

KSOU daily wagers stage protest

Mysuru, Apr. 20 (PM&KS)- Urging the authorities concerned to reinstate their jobs, about 10 daily wage employees of the Karnataka State Open University (KSOU), who have lost their jobs after their names were left back, staged a protest under the banner of Karnataka State Open University SC/ST Daily Wage Employees Association yesterday.

The protesters, who assembled at the entrance of Muktha Gangothri, staged a protest demanding regularisation of their jobs. Pointing out that they were appointed in 2005-06 after the posts fell vacant, they said that they were removed from the job after a few years. Stating that 228 people were reappointed, the protesters demanded the authorities to reappoint them too.

Meanwhile, KSOU Registrar Prof. R. Rajanna, who met the protesters, told them that the annual Convocation is scheduled on Apr. 25 and assured them that he would call for a meeting after the Convocation, where their issues would be discussed and take further steps.

The protesters, who had decided to stage day and night indefinite stir, withdrew the protest following the assurance of the Registrar.

Devaraja Market tenants oppose demolition

They are up in arms against the Mysuru District Heritage Committee's decision to demolish heritage Devaraja Market and Lansdowne Building, paving the way for a new 'heritage like' structures in their place.

The gates of the Market were closed early and even the handful of customers who had come there hoping to buy fresh vegetables were sent away and were asked to come after 2 pm. A protest rally was organised from the Chikkagadiyara Circle (Dufferin Clock Tower) till the Deputy Commissioner's Office and a memorandum was submitted to DC Dr. Bagadi Gautham at his office by five of the Association representatives.

Holding placards that called to save the Devaraja Market, the vendors marched till the DC's Office shouting slogans, urging the administration not to spoil the heritage value of the city and also not to take away their livelihood.

The protest rally was flagged off by titular head of erstwhile Mysore royal family Yaduveer Krishnadatta Chamaraja Wadiyar, who has extended his support to save heritage structures in the city. "Devaraja Market and Lansdowne Building are an integral part of Mysuru's heritage and every Mysurean has a physical and emotional connect with them. Once they are demolished, all heritage will be destroyed," he said.

"Heritage is associated with history and if the buildings built more than 100 years ago are demolished and reconstructed, there will be no heritage or history. They will be just buildings sans history though it will be claimed as 'heritage-like' structures. The Mysore royal family will make all out efforts to protect the legacy and we stand with the vendors," Yaduveer said.

"If there are proper engineering and restoration measures and if real heritage experts and conservationists are involved, both the Devaraja Market and the Lansdowne Building can be restored for posterity. Devaraja Market is associated with Mysuru's culture, art, language and literature. It is a proud experience to visit the Market daily and it must be saved for future generations," he said.

Devaraja Market Tenants' Association President Pailwan Mahadev said that the building is strong enough to last for a few more decades. "There is a conspiracy by elected representatives to demolish the heritage structure and now unfortunately the District Heritage Committee has supported them. Elected representatives are lobbying for demolition to satisfy their personal and vested interests," he alleged.

'Next they might say Palace must be demolished'

"Tomorrow a day might come when they will say that Mysore Palace must be demolished. We reside in the private quarters of the Palace and we promptly take up repairs and restoration every year by calling experts. Like that it is the responsibility of the Government to repair and restore all heritage structures. Demolition is not the answer," Yaduveer said.

"We have kept alive the 'Save Heritage Buildings' movement for three years. If there are proper repairs and restoration, both Devaraja Market and Lansdowne Building will last for 100 more years. In fact, the technical committee that was constituted earlier had recommended restoration. But its recommendation was rejected and a new committee was formed just to favour the demolition. And the same thing was accepted by the Heritage Committee," he said.

"There is a hidden agenda behind demolition and I am not going to mention that in public. Even if it is mentioned, it will be of no use as the lobby is very powerful. We must oppose this tooth and nail. Moreover, none of the recommendations have been kept before the public and the people of Mysuru, the actual stakeholders of the heritage structures, are kept in the dark," he said.

Kukkarahalli Lake turns haven for small business

Milk booth comes up next to main road near a curve; an invitation to accidents

Mysuru, Apr. 20 (MK&BCT)- Walkers' spot Kukkarahalli Lake is slowly turning commercial as many outlets, both with temporary and permanent structures, have come up on the banks of the Lake.

People who come to walk and spend some quality time with nature are getting fish fry smell from one or two shops located very next to the Lake, near the main road. Now suddenly a Nandini milk booth has come up at a place frequented by walkers and health-conscious people.

It all began with a couple of vendors setting up temporary stalls to sell clothes, jackets, caps and mufflers. Slowly, the business expanded to selling fruits and tender coconuts. The fish stall was established sometime back and according to walkers, while they come to the Kukkarahalli Lake for some fresh air, they are forced to inhale fish frying smell, defeating the very purpose of a healthy walk.

Public have regretted that one-by-one, many shops are being permitted to open in the Lake surroundings.

There are many outlets selling a variety of things every day near the Railway Gate till late in the night where generally there is a huge gathering of people.

This is also a place for smokers though there is a ban on public smoking. Most of the times, walkers are forced to become passive smokers, allege the public.

"Elected representatives and officials are quick to commercialise tourist spots in Mysuru and wherever there is a concentration of people, they are quick to milk the place commercially by setting up shops. This attitude has marred the beauty of certain spots in Mysuru and there is no end to commercial exploitation. Looks like the netas and officers are bent upon destroying Mysuru's natural beauty," said a walker.

There is a huge density of vehicles on the road that links Bogadi Road with Hunsur Road. "Whenever the Railway Gate closes, vehicles extend up to 100 metres on both sides. A new Nandini milk booth has come up on the edge of Bogadi Main Road near the turn on the road that leads to Rangayana. It is quite natural that a motorist's attention is diverted and this might lead to accidents," he added.

'They exert pressure'

We had permitted the Nandini outlet to set up the shop next to the Kukkarahalli Lake fencing that is over 8-ft from the road. But we have received a complaint that the milk booth has been constructed at the edge of the road. We have directed the University engineers to inspect the area and submit a report. If a walkers' area is converted into a marketplace, certainly there will be opposition. If we do not accord permission, then they will exert pressure through some influence. You tell us what to do."

In rare event, elephant at Bandipur gives birth to twins

By M.T. Yogesh Kumar

Mysuru, Apr. 20- An elephant at Bandipur Tiger Reserve has given birth to twins, an event said to be extremely rare and a first in India, according to wildlife conservationists.

The baby elephants were discovered by a group of safari goers near the old campus on the Mysuru-Ooty Road, close to the Reception Road. The first photo was clicked by wildlife photographer R.K. Madhu.

According to conservationists, twins are rarely encountered in elephant populations and form around only 1 percent of births. Quite often the mothers do not have enough milk to support two calves, they said. Forest officials at Bandipur said that the next few days will be crucial for the survival of the twins and they have decided to keep a close watch on the mother and the calves.

Elephants, the largest land mammals in the world, have the longest pregnancy of any living mammal. While the African elephants are pregnant for an average of 22 months, the Asian elephants are pregnant for 18 to 22 months.

At Bandipur, the elephant had given birth between the rocks and as such, the twins were stuck in a small ditch, unable to come out. A panicky mother elephant then began trumpeting which attracted the attention of the safari vehicle drivers and also beat forest staff.

Examining closely without daring to venture near the mother elephant so as to not to turn it aggressive, the drivers and guards spotted the heads of the twins between the rocks. They later informed the officers. As per the directive from Dr. Ramesh Kumar, Field Director, Project Tiger, Bandipur Tiger Reserve and ACF Naveen, RFO Shashidhar and staff reached the spot.

A daring operation

As it was difficult to reach the twins in the presence of their mother, the Department staff drove the mother elephant away with jeep acceleration sound. Scared due to human presence near her babies, the pachyderm climbed a rock and watched from there. Later, the forest personnel got into the ditch and lifted the twins one after the other, risking their lives as the mother elephants generally turn very aggressive with newborns next to them.

All this while, the mother elephant was quietly watching from above. It did not move even a bit and it came down only after the forest staff moved away from her babies. It later embraced the calves to feed. The forest staff ensured that the twins were not exhausted while lifting them up from the ditch, thereby saving the twins.

Forest officials said that the mother and twins were doing well and the mother was foraging near the same place where they were spotted. Sensing danger from other predators like the tiger, the elephant has not entered the jungles and is visible in the safari region itself.

Unnerving moment: Angry elephant chases terrified tourist

Mysuru, Apr. 20 (MTY&BCT)- Tourists frequently invade the land of the wild, either in the name of safaris or in the name of passing through the dense forests.

However some tourists passing through national parks stop their vehicles, going as close as possible to the animals. In the process, they click photos and selfies whenever they spot an elephant herd or even a single elephant amidst thickets, in utter disregard to the elephant's rage. This tendency is a dangerous practice and at times might lead to death.

Three friends passing through the Bandipur Tiger Reserve learnt it the hard way as one among them had a brush with death. A wild elephant charged at him and chased him for a good distance before he got into his car and sped away.

Neither the person nor his friends are likely to forget this incident anytime soon. The video of the incident shot by another person showing the full turn of events has gone viral now. The incident occurred on the Wayanad Road between Moolehole and Maddur Range of the Tiger Reserve on Apr. 9 and it came to light now.

Urgency of nature's call

The video shows an SUV heading towards Kerala stopping by the side of the road just before a road hump. While one person got off the vehicle to answer nature's call his other two friends also got down with a camera and mobile phone. The friends were excited as they saw an elephant that was grazing near the bushes. Unable to hold their excitement, they pulled out the camera and started clicking photos.

The other friend crossed the road and even as many vehicles were passing, he entered the forests to relieve himself. Irked by the camera clicking sound and also the sound of other vehicles, the elephant that was grazing peacefully slowly moved towards the SUV. Sensing danger, the two persons entered the SUV and the driver moved a little further.

The elephant that neared the road then spotted another person dressed in a black shirt and white pants. It ran towards that person to attack him. Seeing the enraged elephant, the man ran towards a tree and went around it to cross the road. Not leaving the tempo there, the pachyderm too chased him till the SUV.

Brake lights stun elephant

He reached the SUV and in panic he tried to climb the vehicle even as the driver moved the vehicle ahead. As the vehicle climbed the road hump, the man lost his balance and fell onto the ground. Seeing this, the driver stopped suddenly and the closely following pachyderm was stunned for a moment as the vehicle's brake light glowed brightly. Fortunately, it was a close shave and the man managed to get into the vehicle that moved away from the elephant.

Occupants of over five to six vehicles behind were a witness to the incident and one of them videographed the entire episode and posted it on social media. The group of youths have been identified as hailing from Kerala and a penalty has been imposed on them at the Moolehole check-post before their vehicle crossed over to the neighbouring State.

The Karnataka Forest Department has put up many sign boards along the highways passing through Bandipur, instructing tourists to maintain a safe distance from wild animals and not provoke them. Yet, people disregard the signs and continue to upset the animals, risking their own lives.
